Work lauded

A Peninsula real estate agent has been named Rotarian of the Year by the Rotary Club of South Surrey.

Joanne Taylor was awarded the honour earlier this month for her work raising awareness on the club's events and achievements of its members.

"She was asked to look after our lagging presence in local print media. With little direction, Joanne ensured that the club's wishes with respect to new member announcements and event announcements were promoted," said club president Stuart Wilson.

"Joanne is a valued member of our board." Taylor will now take over the role of director of public relations.

Constable honoured

A member of White Rock's RCMP was recognized earlier this month by the Rotary Club of South Surrey.

Const. Janelle Shoihet was presented the Paul Harris Fellowship by club president Stuart Wilson for her commitment to programs for youth in the community, including the Drug Abuse Recognition Education (DARE) program and the Walk away, Ignore, Talk it out, Seek help (WITS) program which, educates elementary students on bullying. The fellowship is awarded to a person whose life demonstrates a shared purpose with the objectives and mission of the rotary foundation to build world understanding and peace.

Fellowship

White Rock Rotary Club has named Lorne Ginther as the recipient of the Paul Harris Fellow Award.

At the club's June 4 installation banquet, Ginther's work with the Peace Arch Hospital Foundation, among other charitable commitments, was recognized.

"I agree that Lorne Ginther would be an exceptional Paul Harris Fellow. He continues to champion health care in our community by suggesting his clients should consider making charitable giving part of their estate planning," said Peace Arch Hospital and Community Health Foundation executive director Jackie Smith in a release.

The White Rock Rotary Club meets every Tuesday at noon at the Rotary Field House.
